You combine sales and business development expertise with the ability to build and nurture new and existing business relationships to achieve key deliverables that ensure company growth in the region.

XiteBio is committed to:

- Providing an opportunity for an expert sales and business development professional in the agriculture field to advise, strategically plan and lead sales & marketing initiatives for growth in the region.

As Regional Sales Manager, you will:

- Create, develop, and execute strategic sales planning that effectively addresses challenges to growth and stimulates increased market share and company profitability.
- Build and cultivate productive relationships with clients, prospects, and key stakeholders to increase sales.
- Provide strategic direction and hands-on leadership, while developing, conceptualizing, and implementing sales strategy and achieving targets.
- Be accountable for measuring activities and results.
- Implement effective strategies to increase the satisfaction and success of current clients and company processes.
- Research, identify and analyze areas for company growth and high-level customer requirements.
- Contribute to setting and executing inbound marketing strategies that increase customer awareness and engagement.
- Lead the regional sales team, collaborate with other team members and stakeholders.
